To whom it may concern

I have worked with Ger Edwards of Edward Brothers, Conservation Contractors, on several conservation projects over the years.

The most recent Baggot Street Dublin project, a mid terraced 18th century Protected Structure, involved stone and brick repointing, brick replacement and brick repairs, slating repairs, chimney stack repairs, works to cast iron balconies and lime plaster reveals. The works also involved complex structure repairs to cracks in arches and brick walling.

The project was successfully completed in a tight time scale and within budget to both my satisfaction and that of the client. Ger Edwards was helpful at site meetings with design team and with Local Authority Conservation Officers.

The traditional building skills involved in the above project resulted in high quality work.

Based on the work carried out by Edward Brothers I have no hesitation in recommending for any conservation projects.
